

ABSTRACT

A reading head furnished by an electromechanical device comprising a series of contact points which are activated by way of pressure provided by a material-base and its elasticity achieving a connection between this one and a surface, establishing signal or energy electronic transference.